B'nai B'rith Lodge Was Instituted Here Yesterday

Monongahela Valley Lodge No. 776 Independent Order B'nai B'rith was instituted Sunday afternoon in the Olympic hall with prominent officers of the lodge present. Louis Sulzbacher, Grand Secretary of District No. 3 was in charge of the institution of the lodge and was assisted by Brothers Goldstein, Smith, Hofstetter, Lipsky, Feldman and Spatz of the Braddock lodge.

Hon. A. C. Stein of Pittsburgh, a member of the State legislature, was present and gave the principal address. He spoke for some time on the possibilities open for the Jewish people through the lodge, which is purely a charitable organization and urged the new lodge members to take an active interest in their work and stand by the by-laws and constitution of the organization. Other speakers of the afternoon were Jos. Safier, president of the local lodge, Joseph Lasday of Homestead, a member of the Court of Appeals of the lodge, A. H. Friedman, an attorney at law of McKeesport and Henry Friedman, a banker of McKeesport.

Following the institution of the lodge, the installation of officers took place. Max Janavitz was installed as Monitor; Jos. Safier as president; Morris Rozner as Vice President; Leo Wetzler, Assistant Monitor; Dave Snitzer, Recording and Financial Secretary; Max Shapiro, Treasurer; A. Nayhouse, Warden, and Harry Lebowitz, Guardian.

Following the installation of officers, the charter members of the lodge and the invited guests enjoyed an informal banquet in the hall.

Among the prominent lodge men present from other districts were Louis Sulzbacher of Braddock and his fellow lodge men, in charge of the installation work, Hon. A. C. Stein of Pittsburgh, Joseph Lasdusky of Homestead, Henry Friedman of McKeesport, Jake Moskovitz, A. H. Friedman, Jake Nayhouse and Ike Brown of McKeesport.

Brother Dead

Dr. L. H. Keller, a prominent physician and surgeon and one of Hagerstown, Maryland's best known citizens, and a brother of Dr. Chas. E. Keller of Monessen, died very suddenly a few days ago and Dr. Keller left at once for the home of his deceased brother. The following article is clipped from a Maryland paper and is of interest here on account of the prominence of the Keller family :

"Dr. Keller was taken very ill with heart trouble a month ago last Wednesday. He was taken to the Washington county hospital on Friday.

"He had been cheeerful and was apparently getting along well. In the morning he was out on the porch at the hospital. The nurse in the office at the hospital, remarked that Dr. Keller had not called for his mail and Miss Hoover, a nurse upon going to the place, found him dead. Dr. Keller evidently slept away.

"Dr. Keller was a skillful physician and surgeon, making a specialty of treating diseases of the nose, ear and throat, in the treatment of which diseases, particularly, he became noted, receiving patients not only from this city, but also from distant places.

"He moved to Hagerstown from Luray, Va. For 20 years he was in the general practice of medicine in Virginia. He was a son of Rev. Levi Keller, who died while pastor of the Lutheran church at Funkstown, his father being a well known minister of the Lutheran church.

"Dr. Keller was a man highly connected in many ways. He was president of the Cumberland Valley Medical Assocation in 1913; vice president of the Virginia Medical Association in 1896; past grand N. Y. P. G.; on the lecturing staff of the Washington County hospital on the nose, ear and throat; former president of the Washington County Medical Association. He was also a member of the following organizations: Medical & Chirurgical Society of Mary-

Be A Booster

Stand by your town newspaper. If there is anything in your home town worth talking about, ten chances to one your little home paper had a hand in putting it there, and if there exists any unsightly or unsavory nuisance, twenty chances to one it will stay there until your town editor sees it or smells it and wipes his pen on the town board's breeches. If anybody beyond the walls of your little burg ever learns that there is such a place as Peaceville, it will be through the town oracle.

Stand by your local newspaper. It's the guardian and defender of every interest, the forerunner and pioneer of every advance movement and the sturdy advocate of law and order. Take it away, and it would not be six months before the town would look as if it had been doped. Business would drag, society would yawn and grass would grow between the cobbles. Every village gets its money's worth in the village newspaper. It's the wagon that carries all your good things to market.

Y. L. H. A. Dance

Everything is in readiness for the first dance of the winter season to be given by the Y. L. H. A. of the Monongahela valley tomorrow evening in Might's auditorium, Charleroi. The Imperial orchestra of this city, will furnish music for the occasion and nothing will be left undone by the committee in charge of the affair to make it a success. Quite a large number from this and surrounding towns will be in attendance and it is expected that all towns will be represented by a jolly crowd of young people. The Y. L. H. A. is composed of a number of girls from this and other valley towns and their affairs of the past have been well attended and great social successes.

Exonerated

Attorney John Robb Clarke, counsel for George Myers, arrested in connection with the Zorn murder at West Newton, expects to have the district attorney prepare a bill of indictment against his client charging murder, so that in years to come, no one will be able to cause any trouble. The coroner has not yet considered the killing of James Zorn, and regardless of his client being exonerated or not, the bill will very likely be prepared. Zorn, while near death in the McKeesport hospital, made a statement exonerating Myers from all blame.

Aid Farmers

L. F. Engle, of Somerset county, will take charge of the Westmoreland County Farm Bureau tomorrow. He will have offices in room No. 45 of the Bank and Trust building, Greensburg. The head of the farm bureau is 29 years of age.

After completing his education in the public schools, Mr. Engle attended California Normal, from which institution he was graduated. He entered State college, where he took a four-year course in the School of Agriculture, specializing in animal husbandry. During his college course Mr. Engle spent one summer on the farm of J. K. Davis, near Greenville, and one summer on the Certified Milk Farm at Bridgehampton, Long Island.

In June, 1913, Mr. Engle took charge of the farm of Mrs S. B. Cochran at Dawson, Fayette county. He held the position for one year.

While in college Mr. Engle was a member of the Varsity football team for four years, in which time the team lost only two games. He was a member of the famous '12 eleven, which is still the talk of every admirer of State college.

A Pleasant Duty?

Editing a newspaper is a pleasing business—if you can stand it.

If subscribers want to bawl out anybody—the editor's the goat.

If the town is lagging behind and people won't get out and make things hum—it's because the town paper is on the bum.

If business is bad—it's because the editor wants too much money for his advertising space.

If business is good—advertising hasn't anything to do with it, but conditions are right.

If we print what pleases people—that is our duty and we deserve no credit.

If we print what is displeasing—we are a grouch and a crepe-hanger, and don't deserve the patronage of the public.

If we print the news as it is actually—people call us over the phone and tell us to stop their paper.

If we garble it—they tell us we are subsidized by the corporate interests.

Editing a newspaper is a pleasing business—you bet it is.

Big Game Tonight

The match game of nine pins at the Colonial alleys tonight is certain to be the main event for the opening of the week's events in the sporting world. The Merchants and Independents will play a series of three games, total pins to count and the losers will buy the suppers for the two teams. Such well known stars as Cub, Skunk, Muggsy, Buckruss and Remmy will be found in the Merchants' lineup with Silent, Ching, Pickles and Hinglish on the Independent team. The game will be called at 9 o'clock.

A Good Loser

If every candidate that goes into a political contest could lose as gracefully as Joe T. S. Cowan of the Roscoe Ledger, who aspired to be one of the Democratic nominees for Commissioner of Washington county, there wouldn't be nearly so many sore spots after elections.

In his characteristic manner, Joe sends out the following letter and has it published throughout Washington county:

"I was beaten to a frazzle. In the battle of ballots on Tuesday, my home friends along the valley, as well as in various parts of the county, gave me liberal support. I have no regrets for having tried and lost; there is not a drop of sore blood in my veins; the voters decided against me and their will is law; to the winners, Mr. Barnum and Mr. Horn, I extend congratulations and I stand with them and the rest of the Democratic ticket for a successful campaign that may culminate in a victory in November. During the entire canvas I endeavored to treat fairly my opponents and I believe they all treated me likewise. All could not win, and with that knowledge no person has a right to carry on a fight against the successful ones to the detriment of the party. I have enjoyed the campaign and had plenty of fun as well as using up some money and shoe leather. The loyalty of my home town I am proud of, and, while a tail-ender in the fight, I will ever cherish the memory of the faithfulness of those who worked for my success." Joe T S. Cowan.

Belle Vernon Sterlings Defeated By Scholastics

One of the biggest surprises of the season was sprung by the local Scholastics Saturday when they traveled to Belle Vernon and defeated the heavy Sterlings by a score of 6 to 0. Having cancelled their game with the Crimsons of McKeesport on account of the bad weather, a challenge was received from the Sterlings for a practice game. The Scholastics accepted and with their 135 pound team left for Belle Vernon.

The Sterlings, out for the heavyweight championship of the valley decided that 10 minute periods would be sufficient, considering the weight of the visitors. It only took a few minutes for the Belle Vernon boys to wake up to the fact that they were up against the fastest team in the valley, and when the locals intercepted a forward pass and crossed the Belle Vernon line for a touchdown, they gave up all hope. With such stars as "Bull Krepps" and Joe Underwood of last year's All Star team of this city, the up river boys presented a lineup that would average 160 pounds, while the Scholastics would tip the scales at 130. This is the worst defeat the Belle Vernon team could suffer and their followers are so disgusted that the team may disband for the season.

The Crescents of this city added to the local victories for the week by taking the Fairhope team over at Page Park by a score of 30 to 0 Saturday afternoon.

Farewell Sermon

The A. M. E. church was crowded last evening to hear the farewell sermon of Rev. J. E. Morris, D. D., from the text "I Have Put Off My Coat, How Shall I Put it on?" Rev. Morris was fully to himself last night and is said to have preached one of the best sermons that it has been their pleasure to have listened to during his pastorate here. The contribution for the day was over $30, besides the $50 conference claims. In the morning there was scarcely a dry eye in the house, after Rev. Morris expressed the thought that he expected to leave. He will leave for conference tomorrow, and even though he should be changed from this to another field of labor, he will not leave until after the November election.

Should Spare Them

In the California penitentiaries there are three youths under sentence of death. When we say youths, we mean boys in their teens. In none of these cases are there any circumstances extenuating the crimes, unless it be absence of "malice aforethought," which the law, in many states, regards as an essential to a first degree offense. But these boys have never had a real chance to make good; have never, since the hour of their birth, been offered a genuine opportunity to become decent citizens. Not one of them is old enough to have fully realized that the straight and narrow path is the only one worth treading, even under normal conditions. Under the abnormal ones which have enveloped them, it would be surprising were their stunted intellects sufficiently developed to enable them to fully realize the enormity of their crimes, without which realization their execution would be a hollow mockery. Some noble women of California say that, regardless of the propriety of capital punishment as a rule, these boys' lives should be spared because they are boys. That Californit will but disgrace herself by executing mere lads, is the opinion expressed. The women are right, as usual.

Great Rush Expected

A new form of speculation presents itself in the discussion of the effect of the foreign habitation in this country, following the war. On the one hand there is the belief that the foreigners will have a great work in rebuilding their devasted territory and thus will stay in their own countries. It is also thought that even those representatives from such countries as Germany, Austria, Poland, Hungary and other countries that are already in the United States will want to go to their home lands to look up their relatives and also assist in the great work of rebuilding their native cities. Because of this there would be considerable of an emigration movement. However, it is not thought that there will be a great influx of immigrants, as was probable when the war first started. There are too many home ties and duties. If such is the case, the demand for restricted immigration will have been settled in part. Even at that stage the rate of immigration is too high.

Postmasters have received from the fourth assistant general a new ruling providing that every patron of a rural route shall have the name printed in a legible manner on his mail box, and shall have the number of the box which shall be given him by the rural carrier also printed plainly on the box. Rural carriers will now deliver to each patron the number of his box and notices of the new ruling. If the instructions are not complied with, a second request will be made, and if this is not heeded, the carrier will be instructed to discontinue delivery of mail, and the patron will have to get mail at the general delivery window.

The business man who is inclined to ask the question "What will it profit me to spend time, money and effort to make this town better?" should always remember that men change only as their surroundings change. And if the merchant is hoping for better business, he should give thought to the subject of making the town a better place for people to live in, in order that his business in the future may be better.

A writer in a daily paper states that the American dollar will purchase 875 eggs in rural China, or a little over a cent and a third for a dozen. Yet there are those who claim that the importation of Chinese eggs works no injury in this country. Figures tell the story. Add the low cost of oceanic transportation to one and one-third cents and you get the sum that competes with the sale of the American egg crop.

Bryan has made his march to Washington with an evident purpose of lining up forces to oppose the Wilson administration, especially on the matter of national defenses. He had better stay by the chautauqua work, as he will have a larger audience than he will around the capitol. He proved that he could not make the grade with the others of the administration.

The Democratic tariff is a double failure: it has failed to promote the industries of the United States and give employment to labor, and it has failed to produce the required revenue to meet the expenditures of the national government.

LYCEUM ATTRACTIONS

For the Season of 1915-16 Are Announced.

MUSIC AND LECTURES.

Array of Talent Which Is Scheduled to Appear Here at Intervals Throughout the Winter.

An annual Lyceum entertainment course is now regarded as practically indispensable in nearly 15,000 American communities, and the number is increasing with each year.

Some one has truly said that a Lyceum attraction, even though it failed to raise a higher standard in the community, at least never lowered an existing standard or in any way left a deleterious effect. This cannot be said of many other kinds of amusement and entertainment.

What the winter's entertainments and lectures are to be in each community is usually looked for at this time of the year. The course here this year will be made up of the following attractions:

OLD HOME SINGERS.

The program of the Old Home Singers is a journey into the days of yesterday—an evening of reminiscence with the happy associations of the past.

At the opening of the program the five young people have just returned from a musical where a song composed by one of the young men has proven to be the hit of the season.

OLD HOME SINGERS

A discussion starts regarding the music of today. By way of illustration they sing selections from grand opera, oratorio, sentimental ballads, ragtime—the different types which are now sung and enjoyed.

These young artists agree that the most beautiful and best loved of all are the heart songs, which are endeared to us through past associations. They plan an evening of old songs.

The costuming and staging carry us in fancy back to the days of long ago. The serious songs, the sentimental, the humorous, the songs we nearly have forgotten, the songs mother used to sing, all come back to give us a variety of program seldom heard today.

RUSSIAN SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA AT EXPO

Creatore and His Italian Band Will Close Season Oct. 16.

Nothing has appeared in the way of musical attractions at the Pittsburgh Exposition this season that has created so much admiration and delight among those hungering for the best in music as the Russian Symphony Orchestra which is now closing its remarkable two weeks' engagement. Under the direction of Modest Altschuler, this great organization, a perfect type of Russian musical form, has been, and will continue presenting splendid programs, the orchestra being aided in its work by Marie Morrisey, a brilliant colorature contralto soloist, and by some of the finest instrumental soloists covering the violin, 'cello, horn and trombone.

The Russian orchestra has three times crossed the American continent on concert tour and has won its way strictly on its artistic merits. It has not been in Pittsburgh before with vocalists and the appearance of Miss Morrisey is something of a delightful inovation. Following this great organization and commencing next week will come the great Creatore and his famous Italian band. Like other attractions at the Pittsburgh Exposition Creatore is a distinctive type of his own making, with one of the most marvelous organizations ever visiting this country. His conception of music is so thoroughly original and yet so completely masterful and artistic that it has compelled admiration and the surrender of some of the most carping critics of a few years ago. Creatore and his band will remain with the Exposition until its close for the season, Oct. 16.

There has never been offered so many valuable exhibits in any one season as this year at the Point. Valuable in historic, instructive, amusing and entertaining elements. There has never been a season when the musical features have been so uniformly high in artistic merit, and where the demands and tastes of practically all have been met satisfactorily. There is the great historical exhibit of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and United States government display, the collection of relics of the Veterans of Foreign Service, showing war weapons from all the strange lands American soldiers had to fight in, and there has been the splendid photographic salon for the photographers of western Pennsylvania, which has drawn thousands of visitors to the Point buildings because of the broad interest in this first display of the kind.

Of the amusements and attractions of a wider range there are scores, including the moving picture shows, which are free, school displays, electrical displays and the spectacular reproduction, with electro-mechanical means, of the "Siege of Antwerp," one of the great incidents of the present European war.

THE INCOMING TIDE

A Strange Conversion

By F. A. MITCHEL

A tramp called for food at a handsome country residence The lady of the house was sitting on the veranda She was a woman to interest herself in building up those who needed building up and ordered a maid to bring a substantial meal out on to the veranda and place it on a table. Then she invited the tramp to help himself While he ate she questioned him as to the cause of his living a life of beggarly indolence His replies were not very satisfactory and indicated that he followed the life of a tramp because he preferred it to work

The lady, having fed him gave him some money, and he departed When her husband came home that evening she mentioned to him what she had done He chided her for wasting her sympathy on one who was evidently undeserving, whereupon she declared that all persons were in a sense undeserving that the mere fact of a person's being in bad condition, even though through his own fault, was a legitimate object for sympathy, and in any event it was an advantage to the giver to lend a helping hand.

A year passed. The tramp was passing over the same route as before and bethought himself of the aid and comfort he had derived at the place he was approaching He was no more worthy of help than before, felt no gratitude, he only wished to get another meal and some more money. On reaching the house he saw evidences of a funeral taking place in it The obsequies were for the lady who had befriended him, and since she had rendered herself much beloved on account of her charities a large number of poor people were in attendance

The tramp joined those who were passing to have a last look at their benefactress He noticed on the finger of the dead a diamond ring. He further noticed that when the lid of the coffin was put on the ring was not removed When the funeral procession went to the cemetery he joined the throng and saw the body lowered into the grave Then the mourners dispersed, and the tramp, after carefully noting the position of the lot went away

When night came he went to the house from which his benefactress had been carried, stole a spade and a shovel from among the garden tools and going to the cemetery, began to remove the earth that had been thrown into the grave of his benefactress Having uncovered the coffin he took a screwdriver from his pocket and removed the lid Taking the hand, he was surprised that there was in it a little warmth. The diamond ring was there, and he attempted to remove it. Failing to do so, he took out his knife to cut off the finger Feeling something warm on his hand, he struck a match and saw that it was blood.

Leaping from the grave, he ran away as fast as his legs would carry him. Then he stopped and began to think. The most likely solution of what he had stumbled on was that it was one of those very rare cases of a trance having been mistaken for death His benefactress was lying uncovered in a grave What should he do? If he rescued her he would be obliged to confess that he had gone there to steal the ring on her finger

There are natures so bereft of what is good that they can only be affected by some momentous event. The tramp was one of these A sudden revulsion came over him Returning to the grave, he found the body as he had left it. Removing it from its cold bed, he wrapped it in his coat and carried it the nearest house and restoratives were applied.

For a long while the invalid hung between life and death As soon as there was any hope for her recovery her husband was notified of what had occurred, but not till this was assured was the matter broken to any other member of the family Then they knew of it by the lady being brought to her home.

As soon as the tramp had done all in his power to save his benefactress, from whose dead body he had intended to steal a jewel, taking advantage of the excitement attending the efforts to restore her, he disappeared When the lady became convalescent she asked what had happened, but it was not thought advisable to tell her. Seeing that her finger had been badly cut, she inquired into the cause A story was invented to satisfy her

One thing puzzled her. Her husband, who had formerly been unsympathetic with her charitable work, which was not a part of organized aid to the poor, but, rather, spontaneous, had suddenly become an unreasoning giver.

The tramp again visited the house where he had received aid and comfort, but not as a tramp The lady, as at the time of his first visit, was seated on the veranda when she saw a well dressed man coming up the walk. She did not recognize him till he made himself known and told her that it was through her he had become a changed man But he exercised sufficient caution to discover that she did not know she had been in a grave and he did not tell her She asked him if there was anything she could do for him and he replied that there was He gave one-tenth of all he earned to criminals, and he thought that his gifts would have more effect if they passed through her hands She accepted the trust. He made his first donation, and they were continued regularly during his life.

Spots often floated before my eyes. I finally procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at the Hirsch Drug Co, and began taking them. I improved from the first and was soon cured" (Statement given Oct 2, 1907.)
